BALTIMORE JOURNAL

THURSDAY..... OCTOBER 22, 1885.

It is understood that the name of E. J. Dawne, of Oregon, recently appointed United States Judge for Alaska in place of Judge McAllister, will not be sent to the Senate. Whether McAllister will be restored to duty or not is unknown.

The Marysville Appeal thinks a railroad ought to be built from Sausalito to Marysville and up the Feather river, through Plumas, Lassen and Modoc counties to the State line, and thence to a connection with the Oregon Short Line.

Attorney-General Garland has given an opinion that when a Presidential Postoffice ceases to yield a revenue exceeding $1,000 per annum it becomes a fourth-class office, and the Postmaster, although confirmed by the Senate, has no tenure of office, and the Postmaster-General can appoint whom he chooses to fill the office.

The General Land Office has just issued a corrected list of the various United States Land offices in the different States and Territories. There have been but two changes of location since January 1st last. In Dakota Territory the office formerly at Creesburg, is now at Devil's Lake, and in Washington Territory, that at Yakima has been changed to North Yakima.

Some sixteen years ago the death penalty was abolished in Minnesota, since which time murders steadily increased. After various experiments with the law which did no good, the penalty of death was unconditionally restored, and the first hanging under it occurred last week. Both friends and enemies of capital punishment will keenly watch the murder record of Minnesota for the next few years.

Every State has its full quota of old and young men who repair to Washington annually in the hope of receiving appointments in the several departments. They expect the influence of their Senators and Representatives to be exerted in their behalf, and are, perhaps, worse off in having their expectations realized than if they met with disappointment. Senator Beck, of Kentucky, tells why. He says:

I have watched the career of young men who have come to Washington during the sixteen years I have been there. They lose their manhood trying to keep in or to get back, and in ten years are worse off than if they had gone, like my son, to a ranch, or gone to breaking stone out there in the street. I am sorry to have any young people, friends of mine, want to go to Washington, but they get set on it and go they will.

All Bureau and Department officers are engaged in the preparation of their annual reports, and the President has sent word around that he wants everything completed and in his hands before the 1st of November, when he will commence work upon his message. This is accompanied by an order prohibiting the communication of the contents of any reports to the press until they shall be first read and approved by the President. This is something new. Heretofore the heads of bureaus have given out abstracts of their reports a month or six weeks before they were submitted to Congress, and the President has never wanted to see the documents, either in manuscript or print, unless there happened to be something out of the usual importance or significance in them, requiring attention to his message.

John Sherman for the Presidency

The Philadelphia Times Washington special says: Advice received from Ohio speaks of the continued effort among Republican leaders to place John Sherman before the country for 1888. It is stated that a feeling prevails throughout Ohio favoring the election of ex-Governor Foster as United States Senator next January, with Sherman's consent.

A THOROUGH HISTORY.

The third volume of the history of California has just been published, and is fully up to the standard for high character, which has been so fully awarded to all of Mr. Hubert How Bancroft's literary undertakings. It is known that Mr. Bancroft possesses the largest library ever collected for any single literary purpose, and his works testify plainly that he makes it contribute all it contains to render his narrative substantial and rich, and to attain his highest ambition in making his histories full and complete in every respect and a standard work for all generations. The following clipping sufficiently denotes the contents of the volume, which will be found of particular interest to the careful student of history:

In the preceding volume I have completed the annals of California as a province of Spain and of the Mexican empire to the year 1824. In the present volume I continue its history as a territory and department of the Mexican republic to 1840. But while 1825-40 are the chronological limits assigned, it has been found convenient, as already explained, to make the subdivisions of time and topics agree exactly. Local annals have been continued in an earlier volume to 1810; herein they are completed for another decade, and the regular thread of political history is followed to 1840; but the institutional history for 1836-40, including some important phases of foreign relations, is necessarily left for the first six chapters of volume iv. The leading features here presented are the development of republicanism, the downfall of the missions, revolutionary movements, the first overland explorations, growth of foreign influence, the up-building of commercial industry, and the complicated series of political and sectional controversies. At the end of the volume I continue alphabetically the biographical register of pioneers begun in volume ii.

A priceless record, in ten or twenty years, to descendants of old timers, preserving to them their ancestors, with honorable mention forever.

The Prospective Secretary of Arizona Territory.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—Some Arizona Democrats are very much worked up over a rumor that Secretary Bayard intends to secure the appointment of Secretary of Arizona for his son, who is now a teacher of a primary school in Delaware. There are several Arizona Democrats after the place, and they think it an outrage that Bayard should pension his son off in this way on the people of Arizona. For several years this son of Bayard followed the profession of a dude; then he started out to be a tough, succeeding so well as to be able to kick the glass out of backs when he was on a spree, and winding up now and then in the police station on charges of disorderly conduct. His next effort was to try and get in jail as a fighter. He had nearly succeeded when he was bundled off to Delaware as a school teacher. This is the only training he has had to hold any office.

Opposition to Edmunds.

The New York Sun's Boston special says: Ex-Gov. Smith of Vermont is making a still hunt to capture Edmunds' seat in the United States Senate. None of Smith's personal friends dare come out and say he is a candidate, but they act as though he is. They declaim against Edmunds. "One speech from him would have saved Blaine," is heard everywhere. Smith said as much and all his friends take it up. All the Smith party are against Edmunds, and their watchword is "Edmunds elected Cleveland."

The San Francisco Post says: We observe that Eastern Democratic journals, in calculating the Senatorial probabilities, assume that Nevada is secure for their party. This is far from being the case. Nevada is naturally a Republican State, and Senator Fair's opponent will have that point—no small one—in his favor. A Republican Senator—John P. Jones—has been re-elected since Mr. Fair took his seat. Out of the eleven holdover State Senators eight are Republicans. This is a distinct disadvantage to the Democrats. Nine Senators and forty Assemblymen are to be elected next Fall, and the Republicans will need to elect but twenty-three of the whole number to give them a majority of one on joint ballot. The Democrats base their hope of carrying the Legislature solely upon the assumption that Senator Fair will be a candidate for re-election, which is not at all certain.

Stealing a March on the Politicians.

It is the intention of the President to complete his list of appointments before Congress meets, in order to relieve himself from the combined pressure of politicians whom the assembling of that body will bring together. He proposes to take the office-seeker single-handed, or in small detachments, instead of waiting for a consolidated attack, when Congressmen gather they will find all the vacancies that exist, or that are likely to occur, have been filled. The President said the other day that wherever vacancies occurred, or good cause was shown to justify removals, he would appoint Democrats to office, and the best Democrats that could be found. The tenure-of-office law was recognized, so far as was consistent with the efficiency of the civil service, and the party must be patient, and wait for vacancies to occur. It was impossible, he said, for a man constantly engaged in political controversies to remove bias from his mind, and the only way to secure a non-partisan administration of public trusts was to divorce official power from political leadership. He had reached this conclusion from his own experience, and intended to remove all grounds for criticism in this direction while he had any authority. When a man accepted office under him, he must expect to abstain from active participation in political affairs. He might express his views as freely as he chose in a respectful, tolerant way, but office-holders could not be political leaders and campaign managers, without doing injustice to the interests they were intrusted with, or provoking hostility in their opponents.

The President's Views.

President Cleveland last week approved the following as a correct statement of his views concerning the relations of office-holders to politics: "The position assumed by the President in the political contest in New York, wherein he is credited with a warm personal desire for the success of the Democratic ticket, is not the slightest degree inconsistent with the attitude heretofore occupied by the President respecting the question of partisan interference by the Administration or Federal appointees in the politics of that or other States. Public officers are not expected and they will not be permitted, to use their official positions or the patronage of their offices in the interest of party factions. They have been invested with public trust, for the execution of which they will be held to rigid accountability. Partisan interference or use of their offices in political contests will not be tolerated."

The position of Minister to Persia, which Bayard W. Hanna declined, has been offered to Fred Winston, a wealthy Democrat of Chicago.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

BREVITIES.

The Ohio Legislature is right side up with care.

The delinquent list of the Pyramid Lake M. Co. will be found elsewhere.

Pete Evans is reviving the Riverside club, and the Winter's dancing will be inaugurated next month.

James Madden died at Bodie yesterday morning at 4:30. His remains will be brought to Reno for interment.

The State Fair more than paid expenses and the Directors think they will have $1,000 to start in with next year.

Mrs. John Belz received the first premium for the best knitted shawl, notice of which was accidentally omitted from our Fair list.

Emmitt Jones and Wm. Bryant were arrested last evening for walking into Jacob's tailor shop and tapping the till of $10 while the proprietor was absent for a few minutes. Mr. Cantrell witnessed the act from his store across the street.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly
For November comes with a most attractive collection of reading and illustration. Kentucky's great emporium, where so many have witnessed the great Southern Exposition, is here fully and attractively described and its growth depicted. "The trotting-horse of America" is well handled by J. B. Townsend, who shows how steadily and wonderfully the improvement in trotters has gone on, till the present marvelous exhibitions of speed have been obtained. "The Postmen of the World," by Gordon Cumming, is another record of modern improvement, the quaint illustrations taking us back to other times and other places, where tortoises seem to have been the symbol of mail-carriers. Johnston's "Journey to Kthmanjno" is extremely interesting account of the first scaling of a wonderful mountain in the heart of Africa. "Alexander Pope and his Home" will please those of literary taste; and A. R. Wallace discusses "The Protective Colors of Animals" in a way to charm the least scientific. An article which will be read with interest is that of W. E. McCann on "Old Baltimore Inns," full of chatty and pleasant reminiscences of the past, before the old style inn had been superseded by the grand hotel. Baltimore still preserves some old inns full of quaint memories, which are here most agreeably brought before us. In addition to these papers, there are stories, poems and short articles, in abundance. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $3.00 a year, postpaid.

Shipping Grain and Hay to San Francisco.

John Harrison says the reduced rates of freight from Lethlock to San Francisco has been of great benefit to farmers on Big Meadows. They can now ship grain and hay to San Francisco for $4 per ton. This enables farmers to make a small profit on those products, whereas if the rates were kept up they could not afford to ship either grain or hay. Mr. Harrison says he will agree to supply Sacramento with Humboldt potatoes of the finest quality if he can get them carried over the railroad to that place at four dollars per ton.

The Mint.

Supt. Garrard has received orders to ship the parted and unpanted bullion on hand to New York and Philadelphia. Mr. Garrard is now of the opinion that the Mint will be permanently closed and all employees dismissed before New Year's, and that the present Mint building will be changed to accommodate the Courts, and thereby do away with the necessity of spending that $100,000.

A New Orleans street-car company has shot $10,000 worth of mules. The animals had the glanders.

DUCHESS AND JOCKEY

Fred Archer Rejects an Eligible Offer of Marriage.

The Sun's London cablegram of Oct. 17th says: An interesting story involving a romance of the turf and the highest aristocracy has just been brought to light. A well-known sporting Duchess became infatuated with the most successful jockey in the world and proposed to marry him. He was a widower, and she has long been a widow. Her preference was never emphasized until the last race meeting at Newmarket. Fred Archer rode Gray Hermit and ran a dead heat with Modena. When he failed to win Archer found his fee was £500 instead of the customary £10. Just after this her Ladyship broached the delicate question of a matrimonial partnership. Then Archer reflected. Her ladyship is over 60 years old and Archer is only 30. He wrote a respectful answer to her ladyship's offer of an alliance, but the letter was characteristically horsey. He said he was overpowered by the intended honor, but he couldn't ride the weight.

An Alum Cave.

The Times-Review says there is a most wonderful cave of crystallized alum somewhere in the mountains on the other side of Independence Valley. There are in cabinets, in Austin, specimens from it contributed by the discoverers shortly after it was found. J. E. Lucas, one of the discoverers, informed the writer some time ago, that in 1868 he, in company with another man, were on their way to what is now known as McCann Creek, two miles from the present Tuscarora, which was the locality of what was then termed the Goose Creek placer diggings excitement. They were traveling on horseback with pack animals and got lost in the mountains, and camped at a spring, near which were a few willow or cottonwood trees. In the morning, while hunting for their horses, they accidentally discovered an aperture in the side of the mountain, which was about half the size of an ordinary mining tunnel. They explored the opening with candles for a distance of fifteen or twenty feet, when they came to a chamber of considerable size, but of irregular shape, the top, sides and floor of which was a solid mass of crystallized alum. The rays from the candles, reflecting upon the pendant stalactites from the roof and the stalagmites on the floor of the chamber, gave it the appearance of a fairy grotto. There were other openings from the chamber which the discoverers did not explore, but the probability is that they led to other chambers as extensive as the first. The men that day found their way to Independence Valley, and arrived in the evening at McCann Creek. Mr. Lucas said that he had never been able to find the place since, but is confident that it is not more than 20 miles from Tuscarora. If it could be re-discovered, it would doubtless attract many visitors, and probably the contents of the cave could be profitably transported to market.

The Reno Fair.

A correspondent of the Sierra Valley Leader last week wrote as follows:

Reno is crowded with visitors; no room at the hotels and private rooms are above par. The display is very fine especially that which is returned from New Orleans and does great credit to the State, and especially to the Nevada Women's Art and Industrial Association. Some of the finest grapes that California can produce were from Inyo county. All of the articles on exhibition were fine, though not numerous. No finer cattle can be found in the United States. There are only two colts from Sierra valley, viz: one by Griffith Jones and one by Geo. Cunningham. There is plenty of stock in Sierra valley that would compare favorably with any here. The races are good and the weather fine. The Fair is success. The town is full of the very worst kind of gamblers. Never before were so many seen in a town of this size on the coast. Licenses to the amount of $1,600 were paid for Fair week. Our valley is not as well represented as it should be.

Nervous Debilitated Men.

President Cleveland's Industry.

The New York Post's Washington correspondent appears to speak with some authority, and says the President is working a great many hours every day, many more than the clerks in the Departments, and more than many of the under officials, who complain of the hardship of their position. He allows himself absolutely no more leisure than is actually necessary to preserve his health. He recognizes that he has made a mistake in some of his appointments; also, that they have generally been a result of over-confidence in Representatives and Senators; sometimes in the Cabinet officers; always in persons whom he ought to be able to trust. He intends to be at the mercy of selfish counselors as little as possible, and it is for this reason that he is directing all his energies to filling all vacancies and to making all important removals which he intends to make prior to the meeting of Congress. He has found that in a multitude of counselors there is not wisdom, but confusion. It is his experience, thus far, that he is much less liable to make mistakes, when acting upon his own independent judgment, formed after a careful personal investigation in every instance, than when he depends upon the recommendation of those who insist that they know everything about a given case, and that he knows nothing. To facilitate this work, more attention is required to be paid by the Departments to the preparation of the papers of applicants for office than ever before. All recommendations in important cases are digested accurately, briefly indexed, and a summary of the points prepared, so that the time of the President is economized as much as possible. A clerk in the appointment office who should make a misleading digest, or improperly back the papers, would be very sharply called to account.

A New Process of Making Sugar.

The experiments made by the Commissioner of Agriculture in the application of a diffusion and carbonation of sorghum cane at Ottawa, Ks., have been concluded. Professor Willey, who had charge of the experiments, has made a preliminary report to the Commissioners from which the following facts are taken. The yield of crude sugar (that is, as it comes from the vacuum pan) went as high as 280 pounds to the ton, or at twelve pounds per gallon, twenty-three gallons per ton. This is fully double that of ordinary methods. The process of carbonization—that is, adding a large excess of lime to the juice and then precipitating it with carbonic acid, was completely successful. The product obtained was lighter in color and more palatable than by the usual method. The saving in scums, etc., by this method is estimated to be at least 10 per cent. The difficulties encountered were entirely of a mechanical nature and were easily overcome.

Great Faith in the Future of the Pacific Coast.

There seems to be great faith in the future of the Pacific Coast among public men, and half a dozen men want to send their sons there. Secretary Bayard has a son who teaches school in Maryland, whom he wants to try his fortune beyond the Rocky Mountains; so has ex-Senator Johnston, of Virginia, and others might be named. Senator Don Cameron is also enthusiastic about the Pacific coast and staunch believer in transcontinental railroads.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. Feb. 21-1858-1yr
